Dear Mrs John MacLennan.

On my recent return from Italy I heard of your sad loss in the death of your husband who was during a troubled period in India, and for so long a time the faithful ground officer to my grandfather in that Island. I send you my deepest sympathy and at some time or other when I am in Glasgow, I hope to be able to come and see you.

Willie MacDiarmid and his wife dined with me here on Saturday, and told me of the fine and comfortable steamer, that now goes to India - very different from old days. Lady Elphinstone joined me here a few days ago, but though better now she was ill with congestion of the lungs when I was away. I am hoping for a visit soon from Lady Mary Glyn my Aunt if she can get away from London perhaps at Whitstable.

With all kind regards + renewed sympathy rest.

Yours very truly

Arzell.
